CAROL THE COLLECTOR ON PBS KIDS

"PBS Kids' newest star Carl - a raccoon with autism who collects everything from lint to plush toys - is making history as the network's first lead character on the spectrum. "Carl the Collector," which premiered Thursday, follows Carl and his neurodiverse animal friends as they tackle social interactions and everyday challenges like keeping their room clean. Their adventures give children insight into neurodiversity, fostering empathy and awareness in a fun way. Show creator Zachariah OHora, a bestselling illustrator and author, said the entire show is based on showing people as they are - both neurotypical and neurodivergent.

Viewers of the show will see that Carl's collection isn't just a hobby - it's how he makes sense of the world around him and connects with his friends. Interests termed as "overly focused" like Carl's are common for people with autism, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), as they align with the diagnostic criteria for repetitive behaviors or activities.

Carl also pays exceptional attention to detail. In the second episode, for example, he is the only one in the group able to tell apart Nico and Arugula, identical sisters. This at first creates tension among the friend group, but Carl helps them sharpen their observation skills and resolve the issue, highlighting the value of neurodiversity."

FROM BATTLES TO BONDING: A PARENT'S GUIDE TO TRADING DEFIANCE FOR COOPERATION

JANUARY 16 10:00am (PST)

"In this transformative webinar, psychologist Jeffrey Bernstein, Ph.D., shares a proven program to help caregivers reduce conflict and eliminate disruptive behaviors in children, teens, and even struggling adult children. Understand the underlying causes of oppositional defiance and learn practical tools to restore peace and connection. Plus, registrants will receive critical handouts filled with strategies that can prevent emotionally dysregulated children from becoming defiant.

In this webinar, you will learn:

- How to foster empathy by building stronger connections with children through understanding and compassion
- How to regulate your emotions and model calm responses for your child
- About the power of emotion regulation coaching to transform resistance into collaboration
- How to navigate parenting in an era of heightened anxieties and societal challenges
- About connection-building games to foster communication and trust"
