BUILDING STRONG RELATIONSHIPS

Strong relationships can help children and youth in care feel safe, understood, and supported. This workshop brings together foster parents, kinship and out-of-care caregivers, and professionals to explore practical ways to build trust, improve communication, and work together to help children and youth in care thrive.

Presented by Kaeli Sort
Former Youth in Care

through the Former Youth in Care Community of Practice

"We are a community-rooted organization focused on strengthening connection, wellbeing, and leadership through reflective practice, shared learning, and relationship-based approaches. Our work is grounded in lived experience, cultural humility, and systems thinking, with a commitment to supporting individuals, families, and communities to thrive."
