What's covered:

There are lots of products on the market that offer parental monitoring and filtering, but we here at The White Hatter have narrowed our picks and want to share with you. We believe that when it comes to online safety, it is all about parental participation, communication, and supervision, the human factor of parenting is key. However, there are times when hardware and software monitoring and filtering options may be reasonable. Learn about the products and resources that we recommend for families.
